Continuation of American Help A new move of this kind is perhaps not easy at a time when the presiden-tial election looms large, but it is argued that it is not really a new departure; it is merely the logical departure; it is merely the logical continuation of assistance given on the experts' committee. Having participated in the slaboration of the report, American help is needed in its application, and such help cannot consistently be refused. The Christian Science Monitor's representative in Paris, while generally preferring to understate the possibilities of a settlement, is assured that were an American present at the coming conference. For that the time is now regarded as ripe. the presidential election Washington may decide to send a real delegate and making a good beginning, but the Nationalists, basing themselves on Ramsay MacDonald's declaration, are making the following three points: Instead of the experts' report being concession, it is put forward as an outside treaty. It cannot therefore be imposed on Germany, but must be subject to a friendly agreement. The second problem, of inter-allied debts, is relegated perhaps to the distant future, France thus abandoning the claim to have reparations and debts treated together. Thus England makes it clear that it will not conclude a

Nevertheless it is the only measure before the country directed to this end, and the decision taken therefore was that it is to be dis-cussed in the hope of so amending it as to render it efficient for the great purpose at which it aims.

How far the amendments will be able to 30, cannot be immediately stated, as the terms of reference have been so drafted as to render its fundamental alteration difficult. Threatens "Ruthless Revenge" If He Proves Victim of Tactics Used in New York

By FREDERIC WILLIAM WILE NEW YORK, June 24-Amid exteral calm and limitless enthusiasm, but with an undercurrent of strife, the Democratic national convention is underway. Few conclaves of any great party ever swung into action amid an atmosphere so heavily charged with the dynamite of discord. From the principal storm-center, the besieged McAdoo camp, there already emanates the warning of a bolt if its leader is worsted in an unfair fight. Mr. McAdoo's friends say he is ready to McAdoo's friends say he is ready to take "punishment" administered by bona-fide foes in an honest combat. But if he is defeated by unfair and underhanded methods, his partissans declare, they may take ruthless revenge. They would not shrink, under certain circumstances that may be imminent at New York, from turning their backs on the Democratic Party and marching en bloc into the lines where Robert M. La Follette's forces are arming for battle.

Assurances to this sensational effect are given to the writer by one of McAdoo's closest, though most fanatical, supporters.

HARRISON SOUNDS HIS PARTY KEYNOTE

Opens Democratic Convention With Assault on Régime of Republicans

Mr. Harrison, in part, said:

At the outset let it be understood that this convention, composed of the militant representatives of the Democracy of the Nation, is no cold-storage, affair. We were not sent here under an executive order by the candidate to notify the people. We are here by mandate of the people to name the candidate—the next President of the United States.

mandate of the people to name the candidate—the next President of the United States.

The Democratic Party is the friend of business, big and small; it delights to see the reflected glory from burning furnaces; the contentment from happy and prosperous farm homes; the cröwded lobbies of counting houses; the steady streams of heavily loaded trains; and the early bustle of mining camps. It cares not how large the scale or big the investment, what it is most concerned about is honesty it is most concerned about is honesty

Special Privilege Assailed

The corner stone of the Republican Party is special privilege and today its grip is more firmly tightened and its place more secure than at any time in its long history. It needs no cards to gain admittance to the White House, no password to the congressional committee rooms.

Crooked business needs only to gesture or special privilege to wink to make this administration understand and do.

It is against this brutal thing that we will wage relentless war in this campaign. We will not pitch our camps nor stack our arms until the American masses and honest business are freed. Special privileges and unjust power must fail.

In the special orchards of this Administration the golden apples of special privileges have been gathered by the favored few. It is the guardian of every special interest. The mother never guarded her tender young more zealously than has this Administration watched over the needs of its petted and pampered puppets. Not only in the Administration, but in the enactment of laws these interests come first. The administration's late and lamented tax proposal was grown in the Mellon patches of special privilege. Its pro-1200 of the 3,585,985 income-tax payers in America 51 per cent of the total reduction.

Under its benign provisions an income of $5,000,000 was to receive a reduction of $1,331,332, while an income of $2000 would have received only $3.75 reduction. Through its unrestricted earned-income provisions in restricted earned-income provisions it would have opened an avenue of es-cape to every tax-dodging specialist in America.

Through the Democratic law every taxpayer in America will get a 25 per cent reduction this year. Every person who pays an income tax will be required to pay less in the future than in the past. And this Democratic legislation, against which all the agencies of this Administration have invelghed, will give a greater reduction in taxes than would have the Mellon plan to every person whose annual income amounts to less than $67,000 annually.

Out of the total of 3,585,935 incometax payers in America, 3,580,535 will receive a greater reduction in the Democratic plan than they would have received under the Mellon plan.

Charges and Counter Charges Continue to Be Heard With Klan Issue in Lead.

By WILLIS J. ABBOT CONVENTION HALL, New York. June 24-11:30 a. m. A bit more theatrical than Cleveland's dignified auditorium which housed the Republicans only a week ago, Madison Square Garden swelters under a canopy of bunting which absorbs the heat of the sun above and radiates impartially upon the heads of the incoming thousands. It will be a hot time in the old town today without aid from the embattled politicians. Dignitaries advance impressively with occasional bursts of applause. Josephus Daniels, formerly Secretary of the Navy, foregathers with Thomas R. Marshall, formerly Vice-President on the platform. "The most popular man in the Democratic Party today." says a newspaper writer. "I wonder why Tom Taggart does not push him why Tom Taggart does not push him instead of Ralston."

John W. Davis, gray-haired and clean-cut, looking every inch a president, stands erect on the platform without getting a hand. Since Harding's day personal pulchritude has not counted for much as a presidential asset. In the front row of the Florida delegation sits William J. Bryan, here as a fighting force for prohibition and as a fighting force for prohibition and not, as at Cleveland, a mere reporter. Will Rogers, who acted as his foil-in the Republican convention, is in the press gallery here. One sees many figures here that were noticeable at Cleveland. Nicholas Murray Butler, perhaps hoping to get on better with his anti-prohibition crusade, sits in a

Mr. Harrison, in part, said:

may be relied upon to turn into a so-ciety event anything from a prize fight to a national convention, and so the rear of the platform is fringed by a row of boxes, in which half an hour before the speaker's gavel falls privileged persons are seated comfortably.

Oddly enough this matter of private boxes for the political élite has some-thing to do with taking the last Repub-lican convention away from Chicago During several conventions in that city, Mr. Fred W. Upham, the treasurer of the Republican National Committee. has had a large private box in the Coloseum in which he dispensed wide hospitality. But, wide as this was, there were those left out and the Republicans moved away from Chicago rather than incur the odium of giving special privileges to a few.

12:45—Three quarters of an hour late and there are no signs of calling the convention to order. Certain ones the convention to order. Certain ones remember that Cordell Hall, chairman of the National Committee, was some-what indisposed last night, and wonder whether he will be able to preside, if not, former Senator Jim "Ham" Lewis who has just appeared hirsute glory on the front of the plat-form, would doubtless be willing to oblige. Now the Georgia delegation sounds the first real political convention note I have heard in four years by making a gallant effort to sing a song with the refrain, "McAdoo was in dear old Georgia." not cause any very great excitemen and an effort to repeat is blocked by the fall of the gavel. Chairman Hullin a voice that gives no suggestion of "ailment." introduces a gray-haired priest who delivers a carefully pre-pared invocation and is followed by Miss Anna Case, who stirs the latent fire in the convention by singing in Banner." And so with all preliminaries duly performed, and amid the boom of the flashlights, we are off.

From a seat in the front row of the press gallery, I have an unimpeded view of the great hall. Hundreds, apparently even 1000 or more, of seats are vacant. All the morning there have been bitter complaints from rival headquarters that the other fellows had procured all the tickets and would pack the hall. If such a purpose was intended, the packing is very badly done. When, in the list of temporary officers, the name of Pat Harrison read, the convention breaks out in its first considerable burst of applause. The Honorable Pat is not, as his name might suggest, of Irish lineage. The Pat is an abbreviation for Patton. which is, in fact, his middle name.

Coming as he does from Mississippi it is not to be charged that he adopted the abbreviation for political profit. Ex-Senator Hitchcock, former Secretary Newton Baker and a woman delegate from Connecticut escort the key-noter to the stand and he leaps into the battle with a denunciation in his ruption. But when he assures his hearers that this convention is to be red hot, highly seasoned and well pre-pared, he clearly touches shrewdly the anticipations of his auditors.

Perhaps the contrast between the personal characteristics of the rival keynoters at Cleveland and in New York may typify somewhat the differ York may typity somewhat the difference between the two parties today. Former Senator Burton was restrained in manner, scholarly in substance. He spoke almost as the representative of a past era in politics, as one who had spent a lifetime in public service and was giving an account of his stewardship and that of his party. The Mississippian today strikes the note of defiance and denunciation. With scarcely a touch of southern accent, with a dominant personality and a compelling delivery, he southern accent, with a dominant per-sonality and a compelling delivery, he turns from satirical denunciation of the Republican Party to eulogy of his

We ask the people of the Nation to turn their eyes upon this band of fugitives who utter these defamatory remarks against their state and surround themselves with guards under orders to protect them from the lawful process of law. We ask the Nation correctly to appraise them as citizens and as individuals and to understand the depth to which they have been dragged by subservience to a political machine. NEW YORK, June 23—With Gov. Alfred E. Smith as nearly definitely beaten as any candidate can be prior to the actual voting, and with the fight over the wet plank virtually set tled in favor of a plank at least as strong as that in the Republican con-vention, the struggle between the warring factions today has centered on the Ku Klux Klan.

The forces that are demanding a specific repudiation of the Klan by name are the same forces that are back of Governor Smith and the wet plank. Naturally, every Knight of Columbus, every militant Roman Catholic. is urging an attack on the or-ganization which is hostile to their inganization which is nostile to their in-terests. The wets, because they are dominated largely by Roman Catholic sentiment, which stands opposed to enforcement of the prohibition law, are also pushing this demand.

There are conflicting reports as to what will be done. The extreme anti-Klan faction say that no plank whatsoever that does not mention and denounce the Klan by name will be acceptable to them. They are further pressing the argument that the defeat of Governor Smith is likely to antagonize a great body of his religious sympathizers and that the only way to assuage the bitterness of this powerful group will be to give them such a plank as they demand.

Dilemma Confronts Leaders

As against this, every wise observer of politics insists that the Democratic Party will be defeated if it denounces this organization by name. This is the horn of the dilemma which confronts those who are striving to make with an interesting contribution to the controversy. It appears that someone called his attention to a plank in one called his attention to a plank in and unmistakable" declaration. to unite the Democratic Party in 1896, when the A. P. A. held very much the position that the Ku Klux Klan holds today, it ought to be sufficiently speci-fic to meet the present situation. Mr. Moore's Demand Inquiry among the more extreme op-ponents of the Klan, however, leads to the conclusion that this plank will not be acceptable to them. At present the demand voiced by Brennan, Connelly, Guffey and E. Moore of Ohio is for a plank denouncing the Klan by name. Failing the inclusion of such a plant in the majority report, Mr. Moore now says, somewhat explosively, that there will be a minority report, and the issue will be threshed out on the floor of the It is fair to say, however, that while a politician of considerable attain-ments, Mr. Moore has not infrequently gone down to defeat on issues of this character, and accepted his defeat with philosophy. It is also proper to note that although the chief propo-nents of a vigorous anti-Klan plank are Irish Catholics, they are not animated by purely religious motives.

"I want a plank that will get me the votes in the black belt of Chicago." said Brenan, frankly explaining his purpose. It is apparent that the city purpose. It is apparent that the city bosses whose constituencies have been largely augmented by the recent Negro exodus from the south are the most keen for denunciation of the Klan.

The American Association of Instructors of the Blind continued its convention at the Perkins Institution

The Blind today with a series of addresses and discussions by leading American educators.

The general subject of social train-educators.

The general subject of social training and development was introduced by F. E. Palmer, Vinton, Ia., with a paper on "Character Building in a Residential School." The instructor in a residential school has a great opportunity, in Mr. Palmer's opinion. But, in addition to the example of the instructor, tasks should be difficult enough to furnish a real obstacle, and to call for the pupil's best efforts, for "character is built upon the mountain-top of difficulties overcome," said Mr.

Palmer in closing.
Following Mr. Palmer's talk a number of papers and discussions took up the specific methods and problems of social development and training.

Round Table Discussion

While the main body of the convention was in session in Dwight Hall, the main auditorium of the institution, a special round table discussion upon the teaching of piano tuning was going on in the tuning shops of the institu-tion. A number of pupils of the Per-kins Institution assisted in the round table by giving demonstrations, under the direction of Elwin H. Fowler, teacher of tuning. Perkins Institution.

Afternoon meetings were divided into two sections, which took up spe cial teaching problems. Section A discussed the teaching of reading and writing in the standard Braille type. Section B studied the problems connected with the teaching of geography the use of apparatus being demonstrated by pupils of the Perkins Institution.

Last night the Perkins Institution gave diplomas to four graduates— Gaspero Joseph Navarra, Newport; Raymond Lester MacGinnis, South Hamilton, Mass.; Edward Joseph Conley. Portland, Me., and Arthur David Katwick, Bridgewater, Mass.

NEED OF RESEARCH

J. Weston Allen a Speaker at Conference of Federation of Religious Liberals

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., June 24 (Special)—Need of a Christian spirit in politics which will not tolerate mediocrity or be acquiescent in the face of corruption but which will call to the public service the finest type of citizen, was emphasized by J. Weston Allen, former attorney-general of Massachusetts, in his address before the second annual conference of the Student Federation of Religious Liberals at Mount Holyoke College last night.

Mr. Allen at present is retained by Frank A. Vanderlip as general coun-sel for the Citizens' Federal Research Bureau at Washington. Such a "nonpartisan bureau," he said, can render a great public service by "obtaining information of corruption and inef-ficiency and securing the removal of offenders and incompetents," and con-

It is a fitting time to ask ourselves whether as a nation we have retained the genlus for progress in the art of government which our fathers possessed in a superistive degree. Are we doing more than attempting in a ponderous way to apply the principles of government which we have received in new and inappropriate fields?

During the quarter century prior inued in part:

neids?

During the quarter century prior to the World War, we came to regard our particular brand of democracy as no longer an experiment, but as a demonstrated success. We prided ourselves on our policy of "splendid isolation," while our international relations grew increasingly complex. We no longer feared the warning of Lord Macaulay, that the real test of our experiment in government would not come until our broad expanse of unoccupied public domain wis exhausted and the people were confined in congested areas and industrial communities.

The time of danger, of which munities.

The time of danger, of which Macaulay wrote, is upon us. The people are knocking at the gates. They are bringing their problems to Washington for solutions—social and welfare problems which were formerly settled at home and which have no proper place in the national Administration. Upon the outcome rests, not only the future of democracy in America, but, in a very real sense, the hopes and aspirations of all self-governing peoples.

America, but, in a very real sense, the hopes and aspirations of all self-governing peoples.

As the problems of government become more difficult, the Government itself is becoming yearly more inefficient, and inefficiency opens wide the door to corruption. Complacency on the part of the electorate in the face of inefficiency and corruption is, I believe, the most alarming symptom in the present political situation.

Serious as have been the recent disclosures at Washington, the corruption which remains concealed far exceeds that which has thus far been brought to light and there seems to be a regrettable disposition to discourage further disclosures. Such a course can only serve to protect the guilty and prevent a thorough-going reformation in the federal service.

When the growth and extent of the spoils system under Grant's Administration became known, a wave of indignation swept over the country and d to the nation-wide movement for civil service reform, which remains today the enduring monument to that devoted public servant. George Wil-day the enduring monument to that devoted public servant, George Willlam Curtis.

There is even greater néed today of an organization which shall take up the work where, the Civil Service Reform League leaves off, and shall endeavor to maintain civil service at the highest point of efficiency. This can be done by obtaining information of corruption and inefficiency and securing the removal of offenders and incompetents.

curing the removal of offenders and incompetents.

When the public at last come to realize that the cost to taxpayers of the inefficiency and corruption in the Veteran's Bureau, the Shipping Foard, the Internal Revenue Department and other branches of the Government amounts to hundreds of millions of dollars and is the chief reasonfor the continued burden of high taxes, the Citizens' Federal Research Bureau will be recognized as one of the most necessary and powerful agencies for reducing the cost of government.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

VASSALBORO, Me., June 24 (Special)
—Plans have been completed for the second session of the Central Maine Summer School of Religious Education at Oak Grove Seminary, June 30 to July 8. There will be courses in Bible study, Sunday school administration and kindred subjects.

Among-those who will teach this year are Dr. and Mrs. G. Edgar Wolfe of Lewiston, the Rev. Alexander Henderson of Fairfield, Miss Jeanetta Newhall of Boston University. Miss Ruth A. Carter of Portland, state Young People's superintendent, and the Rev. Edward H. Brewster will serve as dean. This will be his second year in that capacity.

FIRE CHIEFS HOLD ANNUAL SESSION

New England Association Meets in Boston

Fire prevention and control was the main topic of discussion at the opening sessions of the convention of the New England Association of Fire Chiefs, which is being held in Paul Revere Hall. The sessions close Thursday. The 300 and more delegates were welcomed to the city by James M. Curley, Mayor, Theodore A. Glynn, fire commissioner, and John O. Taber, fire chief.

A plan to obtain fullest co-operation from the public for fire prevention was outlined this afternoon by George L. Johnson, chief, of Waltham, Mass. He advocated fire chiefs forming a "cabinet" of prominent citizens in their respective communities who would help them to reduce fire hazards and extend the aid of the public to the fire department in every possible way.

This proposal was recenfly put forward by Franklin H. Wentworth, secretary of the National Fire Protection Association, and has been taken up experimentally by towns in the west.

Mr. Johnson pointed out the virtues of the project that might be applied to the problem in New England. Mr. Wentworth suggests that the cabinet be representative of every occupation in the town, and that it include an architect, a manufacturer, an insur-ance man, a consulting engineer and a builder.

The problem of snow removal in connection with fire control was disconnection with are control was dis-cussed by two papers at the afternoon session today. Selden R. Allen, chief, of Brookline, discussed snow removal and the difficulty of getting to fires under blizzard conditions. It was pointed out that modern methods of clearing away snow had made it much easier to control fire.

The value of private fire brigades in factories was brought up by Charles F. Horan of the Hood Rubber Company. Topics scheduled for this evening's program include:

"Fire Prevention," by T. Alfred Flem-ing of the National Board of Fire Underwriters; "Fire Department Machine Shops." John C. Moran, chief, of Hartford, Conn., president of the New England Fire Chiefs' Association, and "Quick Presure Calculations at Fires," by Fred Shepperd, editor of Fire Engi-neer, New York City.

not be exclusively English. The company uses the term "repertory" in the sense that there is no leading man or leading woman, the chief parts being assigned to the members of the cast best suited to the particular type needed. It will, however, carry one play at a time, it is understood, although successes will be revived.

The first offering is a decided success. Indeed "Hobson's Choice" a Lancashire parallel to "Bunty Pulls the Strings," is always a success when well done, and the new company showed itself admiris always a success when well done, and the new company showed itself admirably able to compass it. They bring with them an engaging simplicity, joviality and assurance. Well they may, for Mr. Payne directed the original production of the play in 1915 and he had thep, as now, Whitford Kane as William Mossop, the man of Maggie Hobson's predilection. He is excellent, and Miss Pamela Gaythorne, as the managing heroine, knows well how to be charming though commanding, tender though tenacious.

William Paul, a Boston man, as Albert Prosser, the absurd and twittering young lawyer; Henry O'Neill, as Mr. Hobson, Maggie's blustering father, and Arthur Woolley as Tubby, all were delightfully humorous. Something New at the Pops

Arriving at Symphony Hall last night in the course of the second number, one got the impression of assisting in the lobby at a "regular" symphony concert. For there was the usual group of latecomers standing about, gazing resentfully at doors closed tight and guarded by an implacable usher. And through the cracks in the forbidden doors came tentalizingly the strains of doors came tantalizingly the strains of the first movement of Schubert's Un-finished Symphony.

finished Symphony.

But it was only an illusion. The time was really late June, as one had supposed, and the occasion was not a symphony concert but a "Symphonic program" at the familiar Pops.

A most successful innovation it proved. Mr. Jacchia, with his customary discernment, had chosen his symphonic excerpts with a proper regard for the tastes of summer concertgoers. His program escaped being forbidding. A modicum of "heavy" music was well diluted with lighter stuff. Among single movements from symphonies by Beethoven, Brahms, Schubert, Mendelssohn, Tschaikowsky and Dypråk were interspersed such trifles as Berliod's "Rakocxy" March, Chabrier's "España" and the Weber-Berlioz "Invitation to the Dance." And even the symphonic excerpts were of the more easily apprehended order—Dvorâk's contribution was the Largo of the "New World." Thus both really and-truly music lovers, of whom a considerable number were visible, and mere pleasure-seekers were gratified.

Altogether an admirable departure in Pops programs. Possibly Mr. Jacchia will be encouraged to try it again next year; and perhaps then he will set his symphonic program down for one of the Bunday evening concerts, when the more musical music may be heard without the clink of glasses.

TEACHERS RECEIVE SALARY ADVANCES

Elementary Group in Boston Schools Protests Action of the Committee

Salary increases were granted to nany groupe and individuals in the eaching force of the Boston public chools by the School Committee last evening, in the face of protest from the Boston Elementary Teachers' Club, the elementary teachers receiving no financial recognition.

It was explained that not enough money was available to make general salary increases, as would be involved in raising the salaries of the elementary teachers, and the money approated last night was largely in nature of adjustment, eliminating the haphazard salaries, classifying, sta-bilizing and evaluating. The trend of it was to place the differences in salaries more on a sliding scale of rank or minimum and maximum, and do away with so many ranks.

Favor Elementary Teachers In voting for the new schedule, Dr. rederick L. Bogan, William G. O'Hare, and Edward M. IDEAL OF BETTER LIVING URGED AT ALPHA CHI OMEGO MEETING

Biennial Convention of National Women's Fraternity Is Opened at Swampscott

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., June 24 (Special)-More than 400 members of Alpha Chi Omego, national women's fraternity, representing 41 active and 17 alumnæ chapters of the leading universities of the United States, are today assembled for their seventeenth biennial convention at the New Ocean House.

Sessions of the conclave, opening yesterday with the official address of the national president, Mrs. Shelden D. Graff, 104 Strathmore road, Brookline, and a musicale in the eveni will continue throughout the week. Mrs. Graff in her message to the raternity yesterday afterno cholarship and high social and moral standards as essential to the contipued growth of the organization. On these points she said:

Scholarship Emphasized

We emphasize scholarship not in order to turn out an organization of blue stockings, but because we realize the tremendous weapon a college degree can become in times of need, as gree can become in times of need, as well as being the golden key unlocking the gates of culture.

It is pleasant to note on the whole a good observance of the honor system, and relatively few infractions of university regulations. Our members, too, have indicated a sense of their obligations toward the requirements of Christian endeavor, and have observed their duty in the religious life of the universities. Relations between chaperons and active members tween chaperons and active members have been happier than sometime in yore, both sides seemingly attaining a better understanding of mutual duties and responsibilities. We hold social convention in high esteem, and do not permit our chaperous to be in any sense figureheads.

Speaking of social conventions it might be well to explain the position your national officers take on the subject. While realizing that dividual infractions and breaches good manners are not necessarily "criminal," we firmly believe experience has proven that the beaten track would not have been beaten if the majority of people had not found it the best road to travel.

Ideal of Better Living Mrs. Graff supported a progressive but cautious expansion policy for the for new chapters represented only the best groups of girls in reputed universities. She pointed out further that healthy expansion was one of the best methods to oppose any anti-fraternity movement. In conclusion Mrs. Graff exhorted the delegates and chapter to follow the ideal of better visitors living. She said:

Let me remind you that you are gathered here this year not for the pleasure of reunion nor of joilification alone, but drawn hither by the inspiration of the ideal of better living, an improvement mentally and desired the provinger average and and are the said to the said that the spiritually, progress ever upward and onward, to learn how best to direct our efforts to an approximation of the splendid standards set before us by our beloved founders, this is our veritable raison d'être and the message of the convention. Here in the land of our pilgrim fathers, founded by courageous men and women who braved the perils of the sea and the terrors of an unknown land peopled by sav-ages, all in the seeking of an ideal, here we may well receive encourage-ment and inspiration, and, stimulated by this proud example, carry hom least a flash of that splendid drawn from the altar of idealism. Let us recognize the responsibilifraternity women and, in remembing that ideals are the keynote

The remaining activities of the week will include business sessions every morning which will deal with the internal administration of the fraternity There will be daily sight-seeing trips to all points of historic interest in Boston and its environs. Tonight one of the new chapters of Alpha Chi Omego, to be located at the University of New Hampshire, will be installed. On Wednesday evening a special entertainment, which Miss Louise Graham, of Seattle has arranged, will be given by the various chapters. The final convention banquet will be on Friday night. The chapter of Alpha Chi Omego of the New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, is the hostess chapter of the convention. Miss G. L. Van Auken of Syracuse, N. Y., president of the Atlantic province, is the national manager, while Mrs. Robert J. Dunkle of Brookline is local convention man-ager. Miss Julia Sargent of Washington, D. C., editor, and Miss Louise Graham of Seattle, business manager, comprise the executive staff of the convention newspaper which is pub-lished five times during the week detailing the program and achievements of the conclave.

HARRISON ASSAILS REPUBLICAN PARTY

Democratic Party gave them a reduc-

With the promises of the 1920 camling in our ears, the country held in the passage of the Fordney-Mc-Cumber tariff law the most flagrant epudiation of campaign pledges in all the history of political parties. It was law that reeked with special favors. Every line in it added to the living costs of the American consumer.

Not only did it add $4,000,000,000 additional burden upon the American masses, but it revealed the Nation's crisy toward war-torn Europe. The doctrine of equal rights to none

The dottrine of equal rights to none and special favors to some was never more firmly embedded than in the Fordney-McCumber tariff law.

The platform of the Republican party and the speech of the temporary chairman of the Republican convention proclaims the budget law as a Republican accomplishment—the disiblican accomplishment—the dis-iment conference, the reduction armament conference, the reduction of the number of governmental employees, the decreases in the amount of annual appropriations, and the national debt as Republican achievements. It is regrettable that we cannot accord it this wild acclaim.

The budget law was urged at the instance of a Democratic President and received the vote of every Democratic representative. It was vetoed by the Democratic President only because an unconstitutional provision was included. It was then passed by a Republican Congress and signed by a Democratic President in the proper and constitutional language suggested by the Democratic President in his veto message.

Disarmament Conference The disarmament conference was held, not because of a Republican administration, but in spite of the Republican administration. It was first suggested by a Democrat and urged Democrats. The fight was renewed by Borah, a Republican, ves. but one who wisely declined to become assoclated with the bankrupt Republican partnership in the coming campaign: tionary control of his party has ever been constant and aggressive. Under his leadership, and over the most un-relenting opposition of the adminis-tration, the sentiment was crystal-lized, the law enforced, and the dis-armament conference called. It is true that during the more than three years this administration has controlled the Government the num-her of citif employees in the Governcontrolled the Government the number of civil employees in the Government service and the annual appropriations have been reduced. Those reductions came, however, not because of any Republican reforms. They were the natural reductions that flow from a readjustment of abnormal conditions occasioned by the war. If we did not have bigger things to discuss, greater achievements to proclaim, and higher purposes to announce, we might claim that in 18 months of Democratic administration, immediately following the war, not only, did we reduce appropriations in larger amounts than ever did the Republican Party, but we reduced the national debt by more than $2,500,000,000 and the number of civil employees by $00,000.

Amid all this deceptive cry of economy let it be remembered that this Republican Party, during its less than four years of control, has expended $5,852,000,000.

than four years of control, has ex-pended $9.592,000,000 more than did the Democratic administration during the whole five years immediately pre-the whole five years immediately pre-ceding the war.

The American people have taken the measure of this administration. It might have heard the complaints of the distressed farmers of the west and sympathetically responded. It might have sought markets and re-moved the tariff jams in the channels through which our surplus products hrough which our surplus products nove. It might have visualized world move. It might have visualized world conditions and courageously assumed the part befitting a great Nation. It might have reduced living costs, redeemed pledges to the soldier, followed a definite domestic program, and adopted a broad and statesman-like foresteels.

and adopted a broad and statesmanlike foreign policy, but, even then, it would have availed nothing. The least that the American people expect of their public servants is common honesty. They will forgive their passivity, overlook their indiscretions, and, too often, forget their impotency, but to them corruption is inexcusable, graft is indefensible.

It is the brazen effrontery of this Administration that challenges our attention. They would halt these inquiries by hysterical cries and foreboding predictions. They say, "You are hurting business." "You are destroying confidence." Our answer is,
"We are helping business." "We are restoring confidence."

The Republican organization is now trying to salvage something from the trying to salvage something from the wreck of the old party. The proceedings and platform of the Cleveland convention portend the loss of the Congress, and they are now madly fighting to save the presidency.

But it is not graft alone that offers in the two administrations such happy comparisons. During these little more than three years we have seen the present Administration float along, tossed by every current, fanned by every breess, without purpose, program, or policy. Its leaders have not led, and its organization has not functioned. Upon a thousand issues they have hoisted the white flas of surrender. Amid all the confusion that has, divided this Administration domestic problems have gone unsolved. The President has slowly traveled upon the vehicles of his paper vetoes, vainly protesting but not pressing forward to the task, assuming but not asserting, flinching but mot fighting. In every issue he has quibbled, in every fight he has floundered. Never was party leadership so repudiated and the party so badly torn.

If it be Japanese exclusion, adjusted compensation for the soldiers, Mellon's taxation rates, development of Muscle Shoals, old soldiers' pensions, farmers' relief, or World Court, he stands forlorn, deserted, pilloried by his own party. What did he and his associates promise four years ago respecting international co-operation and the promotion of world peace? Let me read to you from the Republican literature of that day. Here is the historic appeal of the so-called 31 distinguished Republican leaders, including Charles Evans Hughes, Herbert Hoover, William Howard Taft, and Ellihu Root:

"The undersigned, who desire that the United States shall do her full part in association with the other civilized nations to prevent war, has earneatly considered how we may contribute most effectively to that end by our votes in the coming election.

The question between the candidates is not whether our country should join in such association.

The republican Party is bound by every consideration of good faith to pursue such a course until the declared object is attained. We therefore believe that we can most effectively advance the cause of inte therefore believe that we can most effectively advance the cause of international co-operation to promote peace by supporting Mr. Harding for election to the presidency."

That was one of the spurious coins of 1920.

The lamented Harding, in his bighearted, sympathetic way, sounded the toosin call in his New York speech to enter the World Court. That was only a step, but a step in the right direction. It was merely a move, but a movement toward the broader and more inviting fields of peace, and he deserved the backing of his party and the co-operation of every peace-loving American citizen. Coolidge pledged himself to carry out the policy, and yet from the day he took up the task laid down by Harding he has made only a bow in that direction. The World Court at best can decide only international questions unanimously submitted to it by the parties to the controversy. Indeed, it is not necessary for them to abide by the decisions of the court unless they agree to do so. And yet, simple as is the plan, carnest as are these nations that are co-operating to make it a success and draw to a broken world the light of hope and peace, the same serried ranks in the United States Senate are of hope and peace, the same serried ranks in the United States Senate are pursuing their same indefensible tac-tics, bent on destruction and to reap Offers No Apology The Democratic Party offers no spology for its foreign policies. When the Woodrow Wilson plan for world adjustment was wrecked by the sfish and jealous bands of reactionary Republican leadership, world hope for peace was shattered and European re-habilitation indefinitely deferred. The tragedy is they wrecked our plan and offered nothing instead. This Administration cannot escape its respon-sibility for the feverish condition of the world. What they are now seek-the world. What they are now seeking to do with reparations should have been done years ago. Out in the progressive northwest and throughout the great western plains agriculture languishes for want of attention. Farmers are in the throes of despair. More than 600,000 in that great wheat section alone have been driven to bankruptcy during this Administration.

country experienced two national bank failures.

And in the Democratic year of 1919 the country experienced only one national bank failure.

Within less than four years of Republican normalcy more than 1257 banks have failed, and millions of people bankrupted.

During the first three months of this year 255 banks have failed, with total liabilities of over $100,000,000.

A record of promises fulfilled and pledges kept attest the loyalty of the Democratic Party. The long list of unparalleled achievements of the Wilson Administration are among the glorious assets of our party. It is a record that should stir the soul of America and thrill every Democratic heart. What is that record?

A tariff law which bred no bounties and spawned, no special privileges. A tariff law that sought no taxes from the tables of the poor, but raised them from the fortunes of the rich. A tariff law that unfettered buoyant hope and fledged ambitton's best efforts. A tariff law that transformed a weapon of oppression into an instrument of usefulness. A tariff law so nicely advented.

tariff law that transformed a weapon of oppression into an instrument of usefulness. A tariff law so nicely adjusted to world conditions that our international trade balance reached the highest peak in all its history.

Uninfluenced by war conditions, at its lowest ebb it gave to the United States a favorable balance of trade, $380,000,000 more than the present indefensible law afforded at its highest. At its peak it exceeded by $3,000,000,000 the highest under the Republican law.

At its peak it exceeded by $3,000,000,000 the highest under the Republican law.

A federal-reserve law that emancipated banking from the domination of a moneyed monopoly and placed credits in the control of government officials; a law so modern and so elastic as to meet the constant needs of trade and commerce and to act as a panacea against panics. A law which the temporary chairman of the Cleveland convention said, "Serves as a bulwark to the financial life of the Nation and was so helpful during the war should be left alone." We will leave it alone, and not one of the pillars upon which it rests will be removed, but we will not permit a reactionary Republican leadership, dominated by selfish groups, to divert it from its real purpose and turn over its. Administration to its pilant tools.

Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, may I say in closing that this is a Democratic year. Victory is within our grasp if we but reach out for it. Let us remember that too much is at stake for the hideous form of friction to frown upon this convention. Our guns and all our guns against the common enemy. Nothing must happen here to divide our councils or dampen our ardor. Nothing must happen here to divide our councils or dampen our ardor. The fires of Democracy must not flicker. The hope of the people lies in the action of this convention. There must be no skulking: there can be no mutiny. Winning is net wicked. Strategy is no sin. Far better is it for the American people and the future of the Democratic Party that in this convention we deny to ourselves some vaunted expression or surrender some temporary advantage that we may succeed in this campaign than tenaciously to persist and lose. than tenaciously to persist and lose. A great duty and a high responsi-bility rests upon us in this solemn and critical hour of the Nation's life. Every impulse of decency, of human sympathy, of fair dealing, cries out and urges us on to action—militant aggressive action. With struggling millions of men and women throughmillions of men and women through-out the country calling upon us and humanity everywhere exhorting us onward, the great army of Democratic men and women will not-retreat be-fore the enemy upon the great battle-field of this campaign. MASONIC TEMPLE CORNER STONE LAID

Grand Lodge Members and Masons From All Over State at Springfield Ceremony

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 24 (Special)—The corner stone of the new Masonic Temple in State Street was laid today by the Rev. Dudley H. Ferrell of Lynn, Grand Master of Masons of Massachusetts, who came here with his suite along with Masonic dignitaries from all parts of the State. A great mass of people witnessed the parade and ceremonies. Mayor Edwin F. Leonard of Springfield and Mayor Norman E. Stevens of Hartford as-sisted the Grand Master and E. H. McClintock, architect, in placing the stone and spreading the mortar.

More than 2500 were in the parade which formed soon after 10 -o'clock the way in four divisions. In the Lad came the Springfield Command by Knights Templars, escorted by a platoon of police and the Twentieth Infantry Band. The second division was composed of the Hartford and Holynky companderies numbering 400 Holyoke commanderies, numbering 400 men with band escort. In the third division were Hampden and Roswell Lee lodges of this city with band.

The fourth division was composed of Springfield, Esoteric, Samuel Osgood and Samuel D. Sherwood lodges of this city; Charles C. Spellman Lodge of East Longmeadow, Mt. Moriah Lodge of Westfield, Brigham Lodge of Ludlow, Newton Lodge of Wilbraham, Belcher Lodge of Chicopee Falls, Elm and Mt. Orthodox lodges of West Springfield, Indian Orchard Lodge of Indian Orchard and Thomas Lodge of Palmer. The Grand Master and suite and other Masons of high rank followed in automobiles.

After the ceremonies luncheon was served to the grand officers and the commanderies went to Riverside Park

And remember—this is positively your last chance to secure this famous edition for only $1.98.

An Armor Against Embarrassment

Etiquette is the armor that protects us from little unexpected embarrassments. A spoon incorrectly used. Olives taken with the fork. An introduction wrongly acknowledged. These are the things that invariably cause us great embarrassment. And they can be avoided. You can know just what to do and say on every occasion. Etiquette will protect you from making impulsive blunders, will be an armor that guards you from embarrassments and humiliation. Etiquette will make you a better 'mixer,' a better conversationalist; it will make you sure of yourself, confident of your own social powers.

Why attempt to conceal embarrassment when you can have the lifelong comfort of ease? Why wait longer when you are being offered the last opportunity to secure through these pages the original $3.50 edition of the Book of Etiquette for only $1.98?

ASHIONABLE London has paused in the midst of its gay season's activities to consider the dumb animals sacrificed to make an empire holiday. Steer-roping in the rodeo contests at Wembley Exhibition is thus being discussed at many tables. Summonses taken out by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals against the rodeo management in this connection are under hearing in the law courts, so press comments are restrained, for British judges rightly exercise wide powers of action for "contempt" against the expression of any opinion, calculated to prejudice their judgment. A charming corner of the London of King Henry VII has been reproduced by the firm of Liberty, in Argyll Place, just off Regent Street. Mr. E. Stanley Hall, the architect, told at the opening ceremony how he and his father had worked at the design: Part father had worked at the design: Part of the timber used—oak and teak—had come from the old sailfnig ship Hindustan, built in 1827. Twenty carvers had been engaged for 18 months, he said, "upon the frames, barge boards, posts, staircases, and balustrades, and their work was as fine as that of any of the craftsmen of the Tudor period." All the stonework had been worked by hand from the quarry face. The painted glass in a comparatively remote section, gave Hill in, which Abraham Lincoln's parents were married, June 12, 1806, by the Rev. Jesse Head, a Methodist circuit rider and magistrate of Harrodsburg.

This cabin is owned by the society, which had it removed here from its original site near Beechland, Washington County. The owner of the farm, in a comparatively remote section, gave the cabin to the historical society to preserve. The old building has been considerably marred by sightseers cutting into the logs for souvenirs. the quarry face. The painted glass in the windows had been carried out by a boy of 19. Mr. Matthew Hill, representing the contractors, said the old craftsmen would have taken 10 years to do what had here been accom-plished in 20 months. He claimed that the men of today, though work-ing with different materials, were equal to those of the ancient guilds.

Miss Niland to Ask Boston School Committee for Another Building to Care for Overflow

North End streets were quiet and comparatively free from children yeaterday, although more than 1000 of them had been turned away from the Michelangelo and Pormort vacation schools because only 1275 could be taken care of in them. At the Theodore Lyman School in East Boston every one of the 1774 children who applied for admission were taken in although that meant that 75 were crowded into one room sometimes. That is admitted to be too many for a permanent thing, but Miss Anna M. Niland, principal, plans to ask the Boston School Committee to open another building for them. No Textbooks

At the summer vacation schools all the activities are in the nature of play, not a textbook is visible. A variety of things are offered to the children in them. They may play games, sing, dance, play in the orchestra, make things out of clay, make dolls' dresses, sew something for mother, make a hat, whistle, the side of the country.

UME was when artificial flowers

A well-known London store has a department devoted to these "cut flowers" arranged as real blossoms are at a florist's, in most carefully chosen and often uncommon vases and jars. Sheaves of rose-colored, silken-petaled tulips are to be seen, and tall spikes of blue delphinium, great heads of white madonna lilies in jars of the beautiful Upchurch pottery with its matt surface and dull soft illustre coloring. Yellow or white water lifes also float amid their green leaves in gorgeous cut glass bowls, mounted on dark wooden stands.

An Australian's Pleasure

visitor from Australia, a garden and flower lover, recently found him-self in this department and wandering around chose a hollyhock here, a del-phinium there, then a branch of lilac or of fuchsia, and a few stocks, and having these and others put in a gray-ish pottery jar in a lovely mixed bunch exclaimed. "Oh how I love flowers!" So realistic were the silken blossoms, that it seemed as if they had been picked from an herbaceous border in an Old World garden.

Some of the loveliest reproductions are the anemones, which are made in 13 colors. A glass bowl of them showed a beautiful arrangement of these flowers, each in a different shade of mauve, from a soft pale tint to the darkest purple or a wonderful red-dish hue. Very natural too were great bunches of magnolia in a big pot filled with sand, and the branches of laburnum which were in a tall cut glass

Pot plants show another side of the work, one of the very latest arrivals being a pot of velvety gloxinia. The original growing plant which had been used as a model for making the artidictal blossoms was seen later in the workroom. Then there were standard fuchsias, and small rhododendron shrubs in tubs, and azaleas in charment from which the birds may descend deliberately into the water.

There were absolutely natural gardenias, too, for buttonholes, as well as the little scarlet gardenias which so many women are wearing in their coats, and there were conventionalized flowers for dress garnitures. The problem of taking the bottle baby's lunch on a motor trip has been satisfactorily solved by two mothers who put their heads together to find an easy way. They begin by filling to the very top with the correctly modified milk the bottles that are to go on the trip. Thus packed the milk will have no room to churn butter from the cream on the top during its journey over the rough roads. It is a simple matter later to pour off the excess milk so that the baby gets just his prescribed number of ounces. The bottles are stopped with corks covered with a thin pad of gauze.

COVENANT ART. 16 ROUSES CURIOSITY

Amending Paragraph May Be Added to Article Instead of Being Substituted for Another

GENEVA, June 7 (Special Correspondence)—A number of inquiries have lately been addressed to the Secretariat of the League of Nations here in Geneva for definite information on the subject of the amendment to Article 16 of the Covenant which deals with the measures to be taken against any member of the League which re-sorts to war in disregard of its Cove-

Armed Intervention

In its original form the article defi-nitely provided for armed intervention, the second paragraph reading:

It shall be the duty of the Council in such case to recommend to the several governments concerned what military, naval, or air force the mem-bers of the League shall severally contribute to the armed forces to be used to protect the covenants of the League.

The amendment to this paragraph, which has now been ratified by 18 states, reads, in its published form,

The second paragraph of Art. 16 shall read as follows:

It is for the Council to give an opinion whether or not a breach of the Covenant has taken place. In deliberations on this question in the Council the votes of members of the League alleged to have resorted to war and of members against whom such action was directed shall not be counted.

This certainly appears, as is assumed by the winner of the Bok Peace Prize, to remove all references to the Prize, to remove all references to the possibility of employing military force. Enormous Profits Now Being Made and Immense Sums Carried to Reserve as Security

VIENNA, June 9 (Special Correspondence)—Vienna banks have enjoyed a year of unprecedented prosperity. Balance sheets of the big banks, now appearing, show colossa figures, runing into billions and tril lions. Enormous profits have been made and immense sums carried to reserve as security against possible lean years. For the first time in 10 years the stockholders are receiving appreciable dividends, although these are still below the pre-war gold crown Banking in Austria covers a much wider field than in the United States or Great Britain, and is conducted on entirely different lines. The big banks are more directly engaged in industrial and commercial enterprises, in many instances actually controlling and managing them.

The Laender Bank, for instance, owns coal mines and carries on a wholesale and retail coal business. The Anglo-Austrian Bank has a sepa rate department devoted to sugar There is, in fact, no limit to the va of banking

He declared:

Siang is vigorous and apt. Proba-bly most of our vital words were once slang; one by one timidly made sacrosanct, in despite of ecclesiastical and other wraths. I am waiting to see the expression "rumty-too" canonized by Dean Inge, and "gets my goat" academized by Professor Saintsbury. Rebuff for New Expressions of expression than to receive such at letter as this: "Dear Sir: I am a great admirer of your work, but will you please tell me what 'daverdy,' on Page 253 of your last novel means? I cannot find it in the dictionary." The beauty of a slang word is that you need not put it in the dictionary: it cries its own meaning to its own mufin bell.

And dare we condemn Cockney—a lingo whose waters, in southerly England, seem fast flooding in over the dikes of the so-called Oxford accent; and such other rural dialects as are left? There is perhaps no greater divider of society than the difference in viva voce expression. If the East End on Hampstead Heath on a bank holiday pronounced its aitches, and said, "Bai Jove! Isn't it rather naice?" Or if, on the other hand, the West End dropped its aitches and said. "Gard" Lock at the coows in the West End dropped its aitches and said. "Aow! Look at the caows in the tryne," should we not be very near to a day, became a thing of the past; the chief, Count Brockenhus-Schack, a member of one of the leading Danish noble families, and who for 11 years had been chief of the theater, received notice to quit with only, a day's warning. The five directors were reduced to one, and he is solely and entirely responsible for both the artistic and business management of the theater, one of the oldest and most famous in Europe, having as his assistant a literary adviser.

Moreover Mrs. Bang has decided that a second and smaller theater shall be constructed as soon as circumstances will allow, where the drama will henceforward be installed, the very fine present theater being then reserved for opera and ballet, while hitherto all three branches have been domiciled at the old theater.

And now, just as breakfast is over, the Paradiso steams into the lovely port of Adalia on the Turkish coast. At the rail of the Paradiso, we of At the rail of the Paradiso, we of America agree that there is no end to the wonder of traveling over the world and of finding places of beauty of which one has never before even heard. Here, beyond the deep sparkling ultramarine of the Mediterranean, is a precipitous cliff 200 feet high, topped by a plateau with an ancient fortified Turkish town on it. Before us a great waterfall tumbles bodily over the edge into the sea, and within a hundred yards of its spray, no fewer than 15 smaller cataracts pour themselves over the brim of the precipice.

Beautiful luxuriant tree groups hich appear at the edge of the lateau, each punctuated by the heaven-pointing poplars of Lombardy, in some way remind one of groups of musical chords. Red-tiled houses with sloping roofs—the mark of Europe—are visible among the foliage, and at the cliff's very crest are the old battlements, rusty-brown, with squat, formidable round-towers.

Below the cliffs at the level of the sea, lies the semicircular bayou of the harbor, with a few yards of glistening sand between the rocky walls and the blue water. And here is another rugged masonry wall shutting off the sand from the sea; and a small shipyard with fishing boats in various stages of completion; while upon the face of the cliff is the rich green of foliage, and the white, bridling lines of spray, and a steep road leading up to the poplars and the fortifications of the town above.

Hampstead Offered Keats' Home as a Public Memorial

THE Hampstead Borough Council have under consideration an offer from the Keats Memorial Fund executive committee to take over "Lawn Bank," the house once occupled by the poet, where some of his finest poetry was written. The council, not being given to rashness, are considering the matter, and have promised to give a definite-answer by the end of June. It is comparatively easy to guess what that answer will be, for the council has always been alive to the associations of Hamp-tend with the American with t stead with the past, and will not will-ingly let go the opportunity of ac-quiring a building of such literary

A Talk With Lew Fields

Special from Monitor Bureau
New York, June 16 AM so sorry to be late. I have

They sailed on the Leviathan this morning," said Mr. Lew Fields as he rushed down the alleway that leads to the stage door of the Forty-Ninth

"The Melody Man." "Now if you will

The few minutes' wait was neither a waste of time nor a bore to the rep-resentative of The Christian Science Monitor. A great deal that was interesting was happening: The members of the company arriving for the matior the company arriving for the mati-née performance; greeting the stage door man cordially, asking for their mail, etc. The cornetist of the jazz band that appears in the play had arrived early and was practicing scales, "warming up" somewhere in the upper tier of dressing rooms.

Stage hands, property men and electricians were going about their business of preparing the stage for the rise of the curtain on Act I, engaging in a rapid fire of good-natured banter and railiery. The stage manager, going in all directions, quietly noting every detail of the stage, seeing to it that the members of the company were all in their dressing rooms—calling "Half-hourt" "Fifteen minutes!" and "Overture!" to keep the actors informed as to how near it was to the rise of the first curtain.

Applause Heard Back Stage

Applause Heard Back Stage The play began and Mr. Fields went on and played his first act. The applause was heard from "back stage," and although the exact words of the players were not distinguishable, the different voices were, and it is interesting to note that nearly every time Mr. Fields spoke we heard gales of laughter coming from "out front." After bowing for the several curtain calls at the end of the act, Mr. Fields came out into the cement-paved court adjoining the stage door.

"Let's not go up into the dressing room, it is so stuffy. Let's sit here on this bench." Calling to his dresser he said "Now watch this—I am out here so don't let me miss my cue. right, sir," is said in a manner that inspires confidence that Mr. Fields will be called in time for his next

"Well, it is nice and cool out here isn't it? Now what do you want me to talk about?"

Remembering that the program of "The Melody Man" states that "There will be an intermission of 10 minutes between acts one and two" and that Mr. Fields is on the stage at the rise of the second act curtain, the interviewer had to think quickly. Three or four questions must be chosen from the 10 planned. "You are pretty fond of the theater, are you not?" was ven-

Niccodemi's services as stage director of the Pirandelio play won him far hetter-deserved plaudits from the self-same "Emmepi,"—he who, so sharp of tongue and perspicacious of wit, maintains against years and diffillusion his sprightly columns of dramatic comment in this important Italian weekly.

"Each in His Own Way" is the typical Pirandelio drama of puzzled personalities in quest of a unity that eludes them. It is a play within a play, presenting the technical novelty of an audience within an audience. The details of the plot, for all his opologists may say, are of secondary importance; what matters is the wit and skill with which the dramatist of "Six Characters in Searrch of an Author" presents his play of stage folk in quest esents his play of stage folk in quest Pirandello's trick of an audience commenting upon his play is as young as Shaw's "Fanny's First Play." It is attractive: it is as intimate, in its way, as the vaudevillian's stunt of carrying the action into the very sisles carrying the action into the very aisles of the theater. It is not in the highest sense drama, any more than are his other delightful plays of bemused personalities; it is sublimated, self-conscious comment. It is again, despite his own protestations, eminently intellectual, as is that 20-year-old novel of his, "The Late Mattia Pascal," which already contained these later dramas in germ. Excellent amuse-ment of the theater, with evertones of inner searchings, the stability of our opinions, ourselves.

Yet consider how the returned Pirandello has captured the sober critics. Here is Ettore Romagnoli, who has written admirable works on the Greek dramatists and translated them fo open-air production, hinting that Pi randello may be another Shakespeare "As we were returning yesterday from the performance of Each In His Own Way." he wrote in his newspaper, "a fellow with the courage of his impressions pronounced a great name,—too great a name: Shakespeare. No one dared to assent. But no one protested."
As the one and only Shakespeare knew, there are times when milady doth protest too much. And also, as it appears, when she doth not protest

I National Theater is once more a topic of correspondence and discussion. Through the advent of the Labor Ministry hope has sprung up again. Apparently there is some sympathy for the theater among its members, and if Mr. Snowden has given but half-a-loaf to the gallery in reduction of tax, it is a beginning and a sign that things are moving in the right direction.

are men in the Cabinet whose interest in the theater is well known. They are the friends of G. B. S. and some have been helpers in the nineties, when Ibsen was the reformery. Lord Olivier in those days was a play-wright, the Prime Minister, the Webbs. the Snowdens—to name but a few— were often seen at performances of the vanguard. They knew what the theater means to the people.

No doubt they were informed of the drama's progress in other countries, notably in Germany, where in pre-war days there how ished workmen's theaters—magnificent performances of great plays from Shakespeare and Goeths to Hauptmann and Shaw at twopence h'penny for an excellent seat. It was almost the millenium and if the war has changed values, it still remains a potent fact, that in bankrupt Berlin the Staatatheater under come a first-rate artistic institution eclipsing by its liberality of policy. the somewhat hidebound tradition of the Royal Theater of William's days when he himself lent a hand sometimes to productions.

Well, Berlin has its Staatstheater Well. Berlin has its Staatstheater and every town from some 25,000 in-habitants onward has its Municipal Theater fostered by the rates and maintained by the community in spite of parlous finances. In England we still talk, and for want of a practical plan, the National Theater is still in the air, in the thoughts of enthusiasts and the students but the enthusiasts and the students, but the public at large cares naught—will care naught until Parliament and Cabinet take the matter in hand.

EXCAVATORS MAKE "FIND" IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, June 2 (Special Correpondence)-Palestine has yielded considerable archæological treasures in the last few years, since it has become possible to recommence excavations under the ægis of the Antiquities Department.

stile to recommence excavations under the ægis of the Antiquities Department. Archæologists are now apparently face to face with another significant "find. Laborers digging, recently, the foundation for the power house of the Hebrew University on Mt. Scopus, almost fell into the mouth of a cave they unexpectedly struck. The cave was found to measure about two meters, and on entering it the workers found seven ossuraries with inscriptions they thought were in Hebrew.

Pending further excavations the cave was promptly closed, by order of the Antiquities Department, and covered over with boards and stones, thereby only heightening the interest in the contents of the cave, the tomb, and the alches holding the ossuaries. It is not untikely, as an English scholar put it, that if the hole should turn out to be a "pucker cave," treasures will be found revealing traces of a flourishing Jewish settlement of ancient times at the very spot where the Hebrew University is rising.

DENMARK EXAMINES U. S. DAIRY METHODS

COPENHAGEN, June 14 (Special Correspondence)—A Milk Council has been formed for Denmark, comprising 22 members. Prof. Oria Jensen is chairman, and Professor Soncke-Knudsen, of the Royal Agricultural College, is vice-chairman. The other members represent dairy farming, physiological science, doctors and veterinary professions and education. The latter profession is very fully represented, because it is looked upon as very important that an active propaganda for increased consumption of milk is carried on in the schools.

GRAIN RUSH IN CANADA
WINNIPEG, Man., June 18 (Special Correspondence—Since September, 1923, the Canadian National western 1923, the Canadian National western 1923, the Canadian National western 1 load during the grain rush consists of 60 cars, and the number of trains of this length handled during the season was 2565. The figures reflect an increase over the volume of grain handled during the season of 1922-23 of 33,564 cars, or 47,625,000 bushels. An interesting feature of this season's grain movement is that the port of Vancouver quadrupled its grain business. This port is gradually securing recognition as an outlet for western Canada's grain crop. Tennis Horseback The Castle Amphi-Holel and Cottages theatre CASTLE PARK, MICH. Swimming Sailing Fishing

WILLIAMS WINS IN THREE SETS

Easily Defeats E. A. McGuire in Wimbledon Lawn Tennis Singles

WIMBLEDON, June 24 (P)-R. N. Williams 2d, the United States internast, defeated E. A. McGuire of Eng

tionalist, defeated E. A. McGuire of England, in the men's singles of the Wimbledon Lawn Tennis tournament today, 6—1, 8—4, 6—2. Their match was postponed from yesterday to permit McGuire to play in the Irish championships.

McGuire crossed from Ireland last night and his game seemed to have been affected by the rough sea passage. He was unable to keep inside the lines with the drives which he tried to speed up like the American. Williams double-faulted badly in the second set and McGuire, showing momentary signs of regaining his land legs, captured four games, largely as the result of Wilflams' errors.

Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston Miss Edith Sigourney of Boston was the first American to be eliminated from the tournament. She took one set of her match with Mrs. Wallis, but the stronger Englishwoman tired her out. Miss Sigourney could not go to the net without making mistakes in the length of her drives, and at the back-court game was unable to stand the prolonged rallies. She made a brave attempt to take the last set, which went to $-6.

Mile. Suzanne Lenglen, woman's world's lawn tennis champion, defeated Miss Ellis, England, 6—0, 6—0, in the women's singles this afternoon.

Miss Helen Wills, United States woman champion, defeated Miss Lillian Scharman, Brooklyn, N. Y., 6—1, 6—0.

Mrs. J. B. Jessup, United States, who recently won the Rochampton singles, defeated Mrs. Hasler, England, 6—1, 5—2. Miss E. R. Clarke, England, defeated Miss Eleanora Sears, United States, 6—1, 6—2.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., June 24— Permanent possession of the Vander-bilt Gold Cup today belongs to the bit Gold Cup today belongs to the Queen Mab, a marooni-rigged schooner, owned by Commodore N. F. Ayer of the Eastern Yacht Club, as a result of its victory in the 195-mile run from New London, Conn., to this port yesterday.

Although Queen Mab won the trophy she was not the first craft across the finish line. This honor was won by C. L. Harding's Wildfire, another local boat. The Wildfire was timed across the line at 5h. 17m. 47s, yesterday morning, and the Irolita, owned by E. W. Clark of the Eastern and New York yacht clubs, crossed at 6h. 8m. 25s. The Queen Mab was third to finish at 6h. 41m. 45s.

The annual ocean race of the Eastern Yacht Club was first held 17 years ago for a trophy donated by Commodore F. L. Clark. The first cup was captured by M. F. Plant's Elena. The continuation after the annual Harvard-Yale crew races at New London was made possible by the offer of Commodore H. S. Vanderbilt of the New York Yacht Club of another gold cup to replace the Clark trophy. The summary:

Split on S.S. America Is Growing Wider

Some Demand That Ray Be Started in 1500-Meter Race

Started in 1500-Meter Race

ON BOARD THE S. S. AMERICA.
June 24 (By Wireless to the Associated Press)—On the eye of the arrival of the American Olympic team at Cherbourg, the split among officials and coaches involving the middle-distance races has widened. There has come a fresh demand from some that J. W.
Ray shoud be started in the 1500 as well as the 3000-meter team race.
Ray today conferred with head track coach Robertson and Pres. W. C. Prout of the A. A. U., nead of the selection committe, and insisted that he was ready to run in the 1500-meter event.
He declared that he would give Paavo Nurmi, the Finnish star, a hard battle in this race. This attitude further complicates matters because the officials are already in a quandary over R.
B. Watson and J. N. Watters, both of whom are 800-meter runners.

It is understood that the majority favors Watters for the 800-meter event and Watson for the 1500-meter event
and Watson for the 1500-meter event brings up an additional problem which is not likely to be decided before next Thursday. Coach Robertson is opposed to Ray entering the 1500-meter event, but Ray is characteristically confident of his ability to win.

The United States officials when they arrive in Paris will recommend that the Olympic point scoring system, which has aroused considerable controversy for some time, shall provide that the number of point scores be limited to the number of entries permitted each nation in each event.

This was decided on yesterday, and number of point scores be limited to the number of entries permitted each nation in each event.

This was decided on yesterday, and the recommendation will be presented to the International Amsteur Federation in Paris June 27 by President W. C. c. Prout and delegates of the Amsteur Athletic Union. The Olympic authorities recently decided that in scoring athletic events during the big week of July 5 to 13, 10 points should be awarded for first place, 5 for second, 4 for third, 3 for fourth, 2 for fifth and 1 for sixth.

In a majority of the track and field events, American entries are limited to four. The Americans, therefore, 1 favor the 5, 3, 2, and 1 basis of scoring, instead of the Olympic system. Where A there are six entries, as in the marathon and cross-country run. corresponding to the number of places be scored, the Americans recommend a basis by which the first place shall not exceed the total of the next three places.

The Americans believe that the French overemphasize first place in some contests, and do not attach the proper value to others who finish close up.

Enthusiasam among the athletes is shirk as they near the end of their Enthusiasm among the athletes is high as they near the end of their voyage, which, except for a score of minor casualties, has benefited the 300 athletes aboard.

athletes aboard.

The America is expected to arrive at Cherbourg Tuesday night, and dock on Wednesday. If this schedule is carried out, the athletes will reach Paris late Wednesday afternoon.

Miniature Set Designed by Mr. Tupper

WASHINGTON, D. G. June 24 (Special)—A model, weighing only 25 pounds and so small that it may be carried in a suitcase, for illustrating the radio fog-signaling system has been designed by A. W. Tupper of the lighthouse service of the United States Department of Commerce. It is a miniature reproduction of the manner in which a vessel equipped with a radio compass may determine its position at sea by means of signals transmitted from a radio fog-signal station.

A tiny coil, only four inches square, on this fog-signaling model, when turned at right angles to the light tower carrying the transmitting antenna; is represented as receiving radio signals at a minimum or zero point. A pointer connected to this extremely small coil—probably the smallest eyer constructed—indicates on a compass card the precise direction, with reference to the magnetic compass from which the radio signals originate. This indinture reproduction of the fog-signaling system provides for the fashing of a light in the tower at the same time the signal is transmitted.

This model was built as a convenient way for officials of the lighthouse service to demonstrate the operation of this measure of safety at sea in lecture rooms and to members of Congress. It effectively suggests the possibilities of diminutive models in illustrating the proposed. Thus, all told, was been proposed. Thus, all told. "What I saw in Europe" is the subject of an address to be given by O. E. Bradfute, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, from KYW on this date. This would be a good general subject for all those members of the American Expeditionary Forces who returned from that continent. Of course Mr. Bradfute will deal mostly with farming.

We remember wondering how the French peasants could farm with such old-fashioned methods. However, one instance may show why they still stick to old methods. After the armistice a number of Amegican mules were offered for sale at a low figure. A farmer near Bordeaux bought one and hitched this product of Missouri on to his plow. Just a steady fast walk that plowed everything before it. The Frenchman begged and pleaded. But all he could do was hang desperately on to his plow. CANADIAN PACIFIC SUBSIDIARIES.

NEW YORK, June 24—Wall Street rumors that the Canadian Pacific would shortly absorb its lines in this country, among which are the Mineapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie and the Wisconsin Central, are discredited in well-informed rail circles. Such a procedure would place the Canadian Pacific as an organization under the jurisdiction of the value of which one banker pointed out was reflected in ductation of Union Pacific at 166 despite the equality in dividend payments and larger earnings of the American system.

CUBAN-AMERICAN SUGAR BONDS.

It is believed that the Cuban-American Sugar Company will call its 5 per cent. bonds for redemption in August. This issue was originally $10,000,000 in amount, but has been reduced by sinking fund operations to $9,035,000. The bonds are redeemable as a whole at 107% on any interest date upon 30 days' notice. The next interest date is Sept. 15.

IMPROVEMENT IN PRIMARY COTTON GOODS MARKETS

More Confident Buying Is Noted and Price Sacrifices

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 34 (Special) — Considerable improvement has been noted in primary cotton goods markets during the last week or ten days.—particularly during the last three or four days, to be more exact.

Not only has there been more confidence among buyers, so far as values are concerned, but a number of the inquiries of the last ten days developed into actual trading.

Moreover the manufacturers regarded as especially important the fact that the trading was done at the figures quoted by the mills and was not the result of price sacrifices.

These developments lent a very much more hopeful tone, not only to the New England markets where much of the business went, but seemed to cheer up many a New York selling agent regardless of whether or not he was directly concerned in the transactions.

There has been plenty, on the other hand, to get discouraged over, for goods in many lines have been selling regardless of price, and ideas of values have been repeatedly undermined by the news of further and still further price slashing. This has been chiefly in the heavier goods such as low end tickings, denims, towels, and similar fabrics, but has extended also to the print cloth constructions and to wide sheetings, some of the heavier types of which developed unexpected weakness.

Goods Movement Slow

Goods Movement Slow

Buyers were able to obtain goods two to four cents under the nominal quoted figure if they made a firm bid, although there has been no open reduction in prices. Despite the extremely low prices, however, the movement of goods has been embeddingly slow, for buyers seem to be not yet satisfied that prices are at the bottom, and they are waiting for the upward turn in values that all fully expect is coming unless there should be a bumper crop of cotton this year.

It was the fine goods market that led the way the last few days, and strange as it may seem, prices in this division have shown more consistent strength for weeks than in any other quarter of the market. Not only did the fine goods mills report a vary active inquiry for prices, but there were several good sized orders placed, and more are immediately in prospect though not actually closed as yet.

Yarn mills also report the receipt of some sizable orders though the buying has not yet been sufficient to cause the restarting of much idle machinery, however it may have postponed the time when still more machinery would be idle.

Very few prices have shown any par-when still more machinery would be idle.

Very few prices have shown any particular buoyancy. Standard $6x100 combed lawns sold on a basis of 17½c a yard, while 72x100 pongees ranged between 15 and 16 cents according to the reputation of the maker.

Other fine goods constructions were priced in proportion. There is some stiffening noticeable in the prices for the heavier goods, however, and print cloths were selling in the south on a nine-cents a yard basis, though some of the choicer makes were quoted at 3½ % 3½c, with sales at the former reported closed. Other values may be judged in proportion to these, though it has been pointed out that present sale levels are slightly higher than prevailed two or three months ago.

Fall River Sales Small

Fall River Sales Small

Fall River reports sales for the past week amounting to only 30,000 pieces, most of which consisted of 35-inch low count goods, and the various listed constructions which buyers have sought direct from the manufacturing plant.

There has been some trading in carded sateens, but not much though several of the most familiar types of unlisted constructions were ought when offered. The bulk of the week's business in that center, however, was on the low count 36-inch, goods, and of course this volume of business falls far short of taking care of current cutput; more could have been placed for deliveries running through the summer, but most of the mills do not care to sell more than a month or six weeks ahead under the present depression conditions.

Attempts have been made recently to introduce the wage issue into the situation, but so far no progress has been made in putting into effect the reduction or individual mills to reduce the manufacturing costs by operating a double shift or by so fixing the piecework rate that the operatives would have to produce a larger volume of goods in order to make the same pay. Weavers have been told they must run more looms, and a similar stiffening of efficiency requirement has been going on all through the mill.

In some instances the workers through the mill.

In some instances the workers have submitted willingly to anything to allow the mills to make ends meet and thus continue to run, but in other cases the complaints lodged with the labor organizations have been given forceful publicity and protests from the labor organizations, while accomplishing nothing for the moment except to postpone the day, have, nevertheless, been driving the manufacturers to the only other alternative—a flat cut in wage rates. No one knows, however, how soon this will be put into effect.

DROP IN GENERAL REFRACTORIES STOCK

PHILADELPHIA, June 24—General Refractories sold as low as 24½ yesterday, a drop of about seven points since the latter part of last week. The directors meet Thursday to act on the quarterly dividend. Action of the stock was taken as indicating probable reduction in the dividend. The company has been paying $1 quarterly, but this rate was not fully earned in the quarter ended March 31. It has important customers in the steel trade and business has not been as good as had been anticipated.

$10,000,000

The Virginian Railway Company

First Mortgage Fifty-Year 5% Gold Bonds, Series "A"

Dated May 1, 1912

Interest payable May 1 and November 1. Redeemable as a whole or in part at 110 and interest.

C. W. Huntington, Esq., President of The Virginian Railway Company, has furnished us with the following information in regard to these Bonds:

The proceeds from the sale of these Bonds will be used in part for improvements, additions and betterments and in part to reimburse the Company's treasury for the amount expended in discharging its loans of $4,000,000 from the Government.

These Bonds are secured by direct first mortgage on 503.17 miles of road, extending from Deepwater on Kanawha River, W. Va., through the Pocahontas and New River coal fields, thence east to Sewalls Point on Hampton Roads (at Norfolk, Va.) and on all equipment owned by the Company. The Bonds are additionally secured by first collateral lien through pledge of all the Bonds and capital stock (except Directors shares) of The Virginian Terminal Railway Company, upon 600 acres of valuable waterfront and the Company's steel coal-loading piers and terminal property at Sewalls Point.

The $47,844,000 First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds Series "A", include the present offering, $4,500,000 of which were formerly pledged as partial security with the United States Government and the Director General of Railroads for loans aggregating $4,000,000.

The Company has $27,955,000 Preferred Stock outstanding, on which dividends at the rate of 6% per annum are being distributed, and $31,271,500 Common Stock, on which dividends at the rate of 4% per annum are being distributed.

During the eight-year period ended December 31, 1923, The Virginian Railway's income available for fixed charges was equivalent to a yearly average of nearly 21/2 times the requirement.

EARNINGS

The following table shows a condensed income account of the Company for the three years ended December 31, 1933:

FALL SEASON'S SHOE OFFERINGS OF HIGH VALUE

Buyers Visiting Boston Next Week Will Find Unusually Fine Footwear Displayed

Shoe plant operations continue irregular. Several large eastern manufacturers are well booked up for their fall run, while many other concerns are complaiting of the lack of orders.

Buyers will begin to assemble in the Boston market next week. Few seasons have offered buyers so much in styls, price and serviceable footwear as is offered this season. Prices are low in all grades, and deceptive footwear is not to be found, even the smaller plants apparently having learned the fallacy of making such goods.

The demand for sole leather continues light. Prices are steady, but that means little, as there is not trading enough to give them a real test. There appears to be enough wear and tear going on to consume 100 per cent more leather than is being moved today; therefore, such conditions excite the inference that substitutes are working to the deriment of sole feather.

Offal is moving fairly well and holds leave in the reference of the neighborhood of the propaganda which has been waged in North Dakota against stitutes are working to the deriment of sole feather.

Offal is moving fairly well and holds closer to its price schedule than does whole stock. Sales show caution, with offerings liberal.

There is an undertone of activity in the Boston calfskin market. Much shopping is soing on preparatory to cutting. Which some say may not start unit after July 4.

Tanners are encouraged by the call feer light skins, a line of stock which has been hard to move for many sensions back, but next fall's trade is leaning toward both colors and black calf as fashion has decreed calf out proper for winter wear.

Finished skins are listed at $450.50c.; light weights, same quality. 38@42c.; prime medium grades, men's weight range from 38 to 45c. Bender of the same report indicates an increase of colored skins are obtainable from 25 to 35c., with cheaper lost seeling at 29c. Colored buck has moved slowly during the current month but its strong position in the ladies' shoe lines gives it a future of quasual promise. Top selections are quoted at 38@45c.

Tanners of patent leather report business as quiet. Prices are firm as it is common knowledge that this shiny stock holds a strong position in the shoe trade. The expectation is that a large portion The expectation is that a large portion of this $300,000,000 loan will be placed in the United States. For one thing the Government is very desirous of reducing the debt charge and about the only method it has of doing this is by refunding the outstanding debt at the lowest possible rate of interest. It is thought that the required money may be got, or at least a portion of it, at a lower rate than in Canada.

Overproduction in Newsprint

The reduction of $2 a ton in the price of newsprint announced by the Spanish River Company and which is being followed by other big mills, is in line with the general tenor of information contained in these articles. The increase in the number of paper machines during the last 18 months had the inevitable effect of causing overproduction. To such an extent has this been carried that a number of the leading mills are now curtailing output. Nevertheless, the number of machines is being increased all the time.

The SATURDAY COTTON MARKET NEW YORK, June 24—To permit trading on the New York Cotton Exchange immediately following publication of the Government crop report, members are considering a new rule to extend closing hours on any Saturday into the afternoon. The change is proposed mainly to take advantage of the report to be issued at noon of Saturday, Aug. 23. All other crop predictions and estimates will be issued before the close of the market.

WADIRONDACK POWER ISSUE

Stockholders of Adirondack Power & Light Company have the issuance of $5,000,000 five-year 6 per cent convertible debentures and voted to extend closing hours on any Saturday into the afternoon. The change is proposed mainly to take advantage of the report to be issued at noon of saturday, aug. 23. All other crop predictions and estimates will be issued before the close of the market.

It has been a case of overproduction, and it is quite possible that this factor may carry the price still lower. As so far announced the rate of $73 a ton will apply to the latter half of the year. In the meantime Canadian pulp and paper interests are making strong efforts to secure preferential treatment in the Australian market.

Car loadings continue to increase over those for the corresponding period last year. For the week ended June 7 $399,747 a day or $37,906 an hour.

they were 58,828 cars, an increase of 5800 over the 1923 period. From January 1 to June 7 they were 1,225,803 cars, an increase of 105,238 over those for the corresponding period last year.

OF ARGENTINA'S CURRENCY SYSTEM

BUENOS AIRES, June 24—The need of reforming Argentina's curreucy system, allowing relaxation and expansion under Federal Bank control, is emphasized by President De Alvear in his message opening the Sixty-Third Congress. A bill for this purpose will be submitted later.

or the month's operations. The total exports of wheat during the nine months ended May 31 were 240,796,000 bushels, an increase of 57,000,000 over the figures for the preceding period.

Last month was the biggest, in so far as volume of exports is concerned, of any May in the history of the country. Exports were valued at $104,150,000. In May, 1918, the value of exports was $45,000,000 greater, but the volume of products was not nearly so large. Wheat at that time was selling at $2.50 a bushel, as compared with $1.00 the export price today.

Expect Big Canadian Loan

It is semiofficially announced that the Canadian Government will ask from Parliament authority to make loans up to $300,000,000. Authority to this extent is not being asked altogether on account of the present needs of the Government, but rather on account of the fall that calls for the payment of $107,000,000. In addition there are temporary loans outstanding to the extent of nearly $100,000,000 which will be funded. It is not thought that the Government's borrowings will affect those of the Canadian National Railways for

The Reichsbank policy of credit restriction has served to accentuate the credit stringency in Germany that has obtained since the first of the year, says the Commercial Attachés office in Berlin, in a cable to the Department of Commerce.

In consequence, industrial activity has been considerably curtailed. This development has been reflected in increased employment. The only relieving factor in the situation throughout May was the increase in loans to export industries by the new gold discount bank. These loans are now reported to amount to one-half of the original capital of the bank.

number of machines is being increased all the time.

The reduction in price announced cannot be attributed either to lower wages nor to the decreased cost of getting out wood, which, if anything, was probably a little black.

Princeton and the Flowing Bowl To the Editor of The Christian Science Monitor:

In quoting from your interesting article on prohibition in the colleges, the Literary Digest says: "In the past, we are told, the flowing bowl was a feature and no class reunion was complete without it."

This statement was made with particular reference to Princeton. I do not classes graduating within some 25 years by the college graduating within some 25 years by high graduated at an earlier date. It can speak from full knowledge on this matter, for I was a member of the classes and the later ones is interesting and instructive.

In the earlier days the town of Princeton was "no-license," and consequently alcoholics could form no part of any formal college function, as, for example, the celebration of a baseball or probably true that every student in the town, and Trenton with unlimited and cheap supplies was only 10 miles away. The college authorities of that time became the target for much criticism, and put in two laughably inconsistent defenses, viz., (1) That it was better for sudents to drink at a respectable place, which graduated an earlier classes and the later ones is interesting and instructive.

VISCOUNT CECIL ASKS NORWAY'S AID

Anglo-Norse Society Is Urged to Promote Disarmament

CHRISTIANIA, June 14 (Special Correspondence)-Viscount Cecil of Chelwood urged a systematic reduction of armaments in an address before the members of the Anglo-Norse Society of "England and Peace." He

After great and bloody wars peoples always have discussed how to preserve peace. Two ways have been tried to this end. The one was based upon power. The peoples should be forced power. The peoples should be forced to maintain peace. Of this kind was the famous Holy Alliance, and of this kind is the Supreme Council of the Entente, as was the German Junker Party. The tenacity of this thought is due to the belief in power, which is much exaggerated. The will of the sreat masses cannot be tied by force, however. Force in the life of civilized peoples is justified only when it strikes crime which threatens to spoil the happiness of other nations or persons. To force peace upon the world cannot be done.

The other way is the one indicated by the League of Nations. Its leading idea is expressed in the Covenant of the League, "by international cooperation," and it rests upon the psychological value of the league, "by the league," and it rests upon the psychological value of the league, and it rests upon the psychological value of the league, the league of the league of the league, the league of the league o chological value of public opinion. The nations must be brought together and nations must be brought together and-settle matters in a peaceful way. It is not power, but reason, which gov-erns the League of Nations.

If Europe shall not again become what it was before 1914—an armed camp—a systematic reduction of arm-aments is necessary. The greatest ob-stacle to armament reduction is not a desire of conquest, but fear. And as long as this fear cannot be removed, any effort toward international dis-armament is vain. Therefore reduc-tions of armaments must be compenarmament is vain. Therefore reductions of armaments must be compensated by guarantees. The League has worked out a plan for armament reduction and in conformity with it a draft for guarantees based upon the two theories that aggressive war is an international crime and that the reduction of armaments must be com-

Viscount Cecil concluded with a forceful appeal to the Norwegian Nation to continue its support of the League of Nations and to stand by England in its efforts to preserve

THE controversy which engages the attention of the militant Democrats of Madison Square Garden is based upon something vastly more important than conflicting individual ambitions. It springs

An Irrepressible Conflict upon something vastly more important than conflicting individual ambitions. It springs from a radical divergence of opinion based upon economic and social differences, and comprehended within distinct geographical lines. It is the latest manifestation of the steady pressure of the more radical west for domination—or shall we say, rather, the last despairing stand of the conservative east against the aggressions of the growing democracy of the west.

It seems hard for Democrats of the old school to get away from the theory that their party's strength is founded upon the perpetual alliance between the solid south and the great urban communities of the east. The northern cities have long been Democratic, though the northern countryside is Republican. The south, of course, has not swerved from its fealty to the Democratic Party since the Civil War. For a long time, therefore, this combination seemed the logical one, and was maintained even in the face of repeated defeats.

But there were elements of fundamental weakness in the combination. The Democratic Party in the north, basing its strength mainly upon the votes of the large cities, fell under the control of that typical American product, the "ward boss." This individual has almost always been either of foreign birth or of foreign extraction, has held his power by catering to the worst elements in the population of congested centers, has almost without exception been a Roman Catholic, employing the political machinery of that church to strengthen his hold upon his supporters and, in return, using his own power for the enhancement of the authority of the church over temporal affairs. Innumerable instances of men of this type spring into mind. Croker and Murphy in New York, Sullivan and Brennan in Chicago, the two Guffeys in Pittsburgh, Fitzgerald and Curley in Boston, afford classic instances.

The alliance of men of this type with the distinctly native American and Protestant forces which make up the Democratic strength in the south has always been an artificial one, difficult of maintenance. The bond was first broken in 1896, when the Democrats of the south and west seized power and, without effort to moderate the blow, brusquely repudiated the leadership of the great bosses of the northern cities. Since that time the estrangement has been persistent, and on the few occasions, as in 1904 and in 1920, when the influence of Tammany and its affiliated allies among the political organizers of great cities controlled the national convention, the defeat which befell the ticket was overwhelming.

This struggle between conflicting convictions will not down. It has never been more vigorously expressed than in the contest now being waged in New York City. For the first time in half a century Tammany appears with a candidate of its own, backed by the practically united press of the convention city, and having for allies the powerful political bosses of the great cities of Illinois, Pennsylvania, Missouri, and probably Ohio—although in the latter instance the perfunctory candidacy of former Governor Cox is used as a temporary mask for the purposes of the Ohio delegates.

What the outcome of the struggle may be it is futile to predict. And yet it is safe to say to the Democrats gathered in New York that, if they wish to maintain for their party an honorable standing as a national organization and to store up for it a future of usefulness and of success, they should see to it that not the worst elements but the best within the party shall control. Every student of American public affairs knows that the failures in the system of government in the United States which are most notorious and scandalous are those recorded in the administration of cities. The great cities are almost without exception under Democratic control. It is the political organizations built up in them that furnish to the northeastern Democracy its bone and sinew. If this element in the party shall now be able to assert its supremacy over the party as a whole and to nominate a ticket picked from among the servitors of municipal bosses, it will sacrifice any chance of winning the respect and the favor of the Nation.

There was visible in the recent Republican convention in Cleveland a certain divergence in policies based upon similar differences in sectional interests. The Republican farmers are restive under the control of their party by eastern industrial and financial interests. It would be idle to ignore the fact that a certain menace to the success of that party lurks in this clash of opinion. And yet the evidences of internal strife, based upon serious and justifiable differences in political, ethical, and moral convictions among Democrats, are more glaring and more difficult of composition. The Nation may not be facing such a break-up in parties as seems to have come upon party government in Great Britain. But there is nevertheless, in the existing situation in both parties, much to lead the political philosopher to anticipate a very radical realignment of forces and a campaign the outcome of which can hardly be predicted until the ballots shall come to be counted.

IN THE intervals between conferences, committee meetings and the regular sessions of the Democratic Broadway" presented in last Saturday's issue of the Monitor. The showing was that made by a strictly non-partisan survey of that great thoroughfare by the World League Against Alcoholism. The exhibit is both valuable and timely, and is designed to offset, at its very source, the propaganda so persistently spread by the nullificationists through the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

The physical proof is interesting and convincing. New York and its famous trail, Broadway, have been held up as "horrible examples" of the alleged utter failure of prohibition. Agitators have pointed thither and boastfully said that there were exhibited the visible proofs that "prohibition does not prohibit." Doubters, and those willing to be persuaded, have been informed that along that thoroughfare could be found an exemplification of the failure of the law in every city and town. Some have accepted this assertion while perhaps mentally insisting that their observations in their home towns had failed to convince them that the law was being flagrantly violated. The fact appears to be that Broadway is not as "wet" as it has been painted.

A physical survey of the thoroughfare from end to end discloses the encouraging showing that since the year 1914 the number of saloons along Broadway has shrunk from 186 to 15, with the few remaining ostensibly dispensing none but soft drinks. In addition to this, the threescore bottled-liquor dispensaries have vanished. In place of these resorts there have sprung up all manner of business places, candy stores, restaurants, banks, automobile establishments, haberdasheries, and other establishments, resulting in an increased value, as represented by the assessment rolls of real estate, of $27,230,000. Particular attention is called to that portion of the summary of the survey dealing with changed business conditions:

For every saloon or liquor store which has gone out of business there are now from one to five new stores.

Prohibition on Broadway has been responsible for a greater building activity all along this famous thoroughfare.

Prohibition has done no harm to business, but has increased business.

It has not harmed the amusement district, but has increased the attendance at theaters. It has given Broadway a new moral tone and, while it has taken a lot of the coarseness and vulgarity out of the "roaring forties," prohibition has not lessened the gayety of Broadway.

the gayety of Broadway.

The new order of things in the residential district is excluding the liquor traffic completely.

Prohibition has done more on this street to circumvent the evils of alcoholism than all the former laws and regulations

Now these are statements capable of easy verification. The delegates who are inclined to believe that prohibition has not benefited Broadway, and that it cannot, therefore, benefit other parts of the country, may take a sightseeing bus, a taxicab, or an electric surface car, and traverse Broadway from the Battery to Seventy-Second Street, and even beyond, and see for themselves. They should not confuse actual conditions with those at some political headquarters and in the lobbies of some of the hotels. The bootleggers and rumrunners are doing all they can to make it seem that liquor is plentiful and easily procurable. They, aided by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, are doing everything in their power to break down the law.

Broadway speaks for itself. It is not the great American oasis, as has been claimed. It is much like Main Street in any thriving city anywhere in the land.

THE recent announcement that immediate home rule for India has been demanded of the British Govern-

Is It a Turn of India's

ment in a memorandum from both the Swaraj and the "Moderate" representatives of the Protectorate, now in London, is of special interest. The claim thus put forward is that India be allowed to draft its own constitution as the Dominions and the Irish Free State have done, and a further light is thrown on the proposal by a comment of Mr. Sastri's, at present on a mission in England from his country's "National Convention." He says:

We plead for the complete autonomy of the Provinces and the handing over of the civil departments of the central goverument to ministers responsible under our Legislature,—by "civil departments" meaning all except those in charge of defense and foreign relations.

According to this Hindu publicist, there is no difference of opinion among India's politicians upon this petition, and he believes nothing short of this will satisfy them.

One who has been following late developments in the big Asian peninsula probably will see here the turn of the wheel to political agitation, which for some weeks has been expected. Since the outburst of violent intractability, which culminated two months ago in the rejection of the budget by Delhi's Assembly, there has been a period of obstructionist quiescence. Swarajists and Independent Nationalists have pursued separate paths, the one clearly exercised as to what their next move should be, the other relapsed into their earlier mood of somewhat querulous criticism. Mr. Gandhi alone of the leaders on either side has taken a slightly more positive stand, throwing out hints of possible "conditional co-operation," though such suggestions must be read in the knowledge that their author is liable at any moment to revert to utterly impracticable idealism.

As to the Government, it will be remembered its menibers had appointed a committee to inquire into the workings of the present dyarchical system with the object of investigating the feasibility of remedying obstacles to the smooth running of the Government of India Act, "consistently with its policy, structure, and purpose." In other words, they stand ready to discuss the Montagu-Chelmsford scheme with natives of good will, and to improve it where it is shown to be capable of improvement. This report-now in the hands of the executives, though not yet made public-comes at an exact half-way stage of the mighty experiment, for the transitional Constitution came into force in 1919, five years ago, and is officially due for revision in another five years-1929. It is declared that the authorities are ready at this time to make liberal advances, provided only they receive reasonable assurances from India of an intention to work the Constitution in its amended form in a tractable spirit.

Of necessity, all depends on this—and in fairness it has to be added that scant encouragement of such hope hitherto has been given by the land's "advanced" groups.

In connection with all this, is it not indicative that there should be continued talk of the Viceroy making the journey to London during the summer? That Lord Reading would be getting a much-needed holiday would not prevent his visit enabling him to talk over Indian affairs with the Secretary of State and the Prime Minister, and so setting forth actual conditions far better than could be done by the longest memoranda. The problem, vast as it is, can be stated succinctly, for it is only (!) to find a safe and workable scheme for satisfying India.

The whole uneasy situation is, unquestionably, in a more fluid state than it has been for months. With genuine good will on both sides, a new start might be made that would be greatly worth the making. Nor must it be forgotten that the riddle can be solved by neither the British nor the Indian alone. It is too broad, too deep, too generally complicated. A lasting answer will be found only through mutual striving, each party giving of its very best.

ence tends to convince those who offer or give it that it is not very often followed. With the close of the commencement season in American schools and colleges an ambitious compiler mightwith ease collect material for many volumes of addresses to many volumes of addresses to graduates. Just how valuable a contribution these would comprise cannot be casually estimated. But the tendency is to believe that these commencement-day orations are, for the most part, of a quality or value comparable with those addresses, already in course of preparation, which will be delivered throughout the United States on Independence Day, soon to be generally observed. They are made to fit the mood of those who listen. They are seldom highly inspirational, infrequently particularly instructive, and usually tedious and uninteresting. For the most part they serve as vehicles for the expression of the personal opinions or theories of the selected speakers.

These, except in rare instances, are not valuable. But occasionally a bright and illuminating light is revealed at such times. The vision of a commencementday orator occasionally is cleared by the opportunity presented or by the conditions which have combined to bring into contact those ready to listen appreciatively and one prepared to talk wisely and sensibly. The graduate from school or university gains a distorted concept of his own relation to society if he is told and made to believe that he has received a patent which assures him success in whatever undertaking he chooses to enter. His equipment is valuable only in the degree that he is able to apply it in doing his part of the work of the world. His experience is not in the past. It is before him, the world still unconquered. Therefore it is the wise and considerate orator or teacher who, rich in the experience gained by consecrated service in the ranks, draws from this wealth at such a time and shares with those who listen what

There is no royal road to true success. On the broad highway leading thither there are many who appear to be riding comfortably and securely astride their favorite hobbies or seated in vehicles constructed after their fancies, or, perchance, who are being carried, as it were. in the arms of others who sustain and support them. But beyond the high road and the goal there must be traversed a path along which all who progress thus far must walk alone, unaided, except by that strength and forbearance which only the tried and the courageous possess. In that experience much that the commencement-day orator may have said will be forgotten. The rougher places may be avoided by those who have heeded timely and wise warnings which previous toilers along the route who have learned by experience may be thoughtful enough to give. But at the end of the course there is nothing save that which the traveler himself brings.

Editorial Notes

DOUBTLESS when Belgium put forward its claim for the appointment in Tangier of a Belgian judge and two Belgian police officers, it was not figuring on the situation which would be thereby created, should its request be granted and other governments make similar demands. The number of Belgian subjects resident in Tangier, it appears, is officially estimated at twenty. This fact, it has been computed, would mean that, should every other power with residents in Tangier make a request similar to that made by Belgium, the new administration of Tangier would number 3000 new judges and 6000 additional police officers! Moreover, in the case of one country having but ten residents, someone has suggested that only half a judge would be necessary. The question of where such an unknown quantity would be found, has not, it seems, been yet decided.

IT WOULD seem, from an item in The Times of London, published just 100 years ago, that the outcry raised in some sections of the United States so vehemently today, in connection with the liquor issue, against what is bitterly designated as tampering with the question of personal liberty, has an almost historic background. For instance, it appears that in June, 1824, a "gentleman" was arrested in London on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and was sentenced to pay a fine of 5s. When paying the fine, he observed to the judge that it did appear to him "most strange how any set of men, having their proper senses about them, could frame a law to fine a gentleman because he chooses to get drunk." "Under such a law," he argued, "no man in the country is safe." He added, moreover, "There is no social principle or feeling Truly, history repeats itself!

Public Opinion in Germany By RAYMOND T. RICH

A previous article by Mr. Rich on this same subject appeared in this column on May 20, 1924.

At my right was the commandant of the Citadel of Verdun; at my left, a veteran captain, specially detailed by the Ministry of War to accompany our group. About us stretched the ruins of Thiaumont, Douamont, and of Vaux. There had been a city where two stood, but now not one stone on another. We stood there mute; then silently walked along. The way led down a sharp ravine, ragged, bruised and desolate. It was still beyond words. Suddenly a workman stopped us with a warning. We quickly found the shelter of a neighboring dugout. A moment passed, then crash! The thundering boom of an exploding "dud" reverberated through the ravine; then another, another, and yet one more. It seemed as if the war were on, yet thirty months had intervened. The commandant motioned to us, and we continued on our way.

We seemed on sacred ground, where thousands, yes, well nigh millions, had struggled, fought, and given their all for a great ideal. My thoughts went back to the Argonne and my countrymen beneath the rows of crosses. I had been there the day before, together with our captain guide. I lived it all again. How reverently he led us to the center, then stopped, saluted and quietly said, "They did not serve in vain." And I was both sad and happy.

No, they had not served in vain; to that I agreed with all my heart. I had been through Germany and found militarism a thing of the past, democracy alive. Best of all, there seemed to be surprisingly little hatred. Strong exceptions there were, to be sure, and especially in the Rhineland, but I had talked with leaders from high to low and had returned feeling that there was indeed the possibility of a new Germany. General Ludendorff? Ah, yes, he was still loudly boasting and vainly threatening, but his followers then were very few. The real power, the real control, lay principally with the liberal classes. It was, therefore, that I could agree most heartily with my French guide, and feel, indeed, that those resting in Argonne, Verdun, and countless other fields, "had not served in vain."

Months passed, and events of stupendous importance occurred in Europe. New Year's day found me in Berlin at the home of some chance acquaintances, an elderly German professor and his wife. I probably differed with them on every question—save the pronunciation of German—but they so typified the old, aristocratic, monarch-loyal element that I frequently called upon them, just to learn their point of view. Near their home was a fine old church, with famous chimes, which pealed forth, shortly after my arrival, in annual New Year's concert. Thousands upon thousands of people had gathered in the broad street beneath the professor's windows, quietly listening to the music. At last came the final number. As the chimes ceased there was a murmur through the crowd, someone began to sing, and in a moment the thousands had "Deutschland, Deutschland ueber Alles," were the spirited words, followed soon by "Die Wacht am Rhein." As the end was reached I turned toward the professor and his wife. There were tears in her eyes. I glanced inquiringly. "We are very happy," she said. "We have not heard so many people sing our old songs since the revolution. M. Poincaré is bringing back our patriotism.

Not since the war had they heard a large public gathering sing that song? Why was it being sung again? What had happened? I had not realized that such a change had taken place, and yet, having my attention called, I could easily trace the causes. The fall and early winter had brought crisis after crisis, the cost of living had mounted to appalling heights, the "fulfillment government" of Chancellor Wirth, unable to show success abroad, had perforce resigned, and now there was the threat of the Ruhr occupation. The reaction among the masses had been a reconsolidation of nationalistic sentiment, born from common suffering, and also an increasing belief—tragic retrogression indeed—that only the lack of an army was responsible for it all.

Yet even directly following the Ruhr occupation, liberal people still retained their poise. One illustration is very striking. For several months I enjoyed the experience of lunching daily with an exceptional young German who had risen during the war from one of the lowest army grades to the rank of division adjutant. As we were talking one afternoon, he expressed a reasoned opinion which I long remembered.

"One of our greatest problems," he said, "is to make the coming generations realize what war means. Most of us who fought four terrible years know what war is, and we see that a real, effective peace must be established in Europe. But what of those who have not shared our experiences? How shall we prevent them from growing up with a desire for war? That is a problem which we must solve." Could he have expressed a more laudable view?

But further events occurred, fresh trials oppressed from every angle, and the increase of physical need, visible to any careful observer, became indescribably distressing. The mental and moral condition of the people was even more unsound. After an interval of six or seven weeks, I found myself again in the company of the idealistic ex-officer. As we were conversing as frankly as usual, he suddenly stopped.

versing as frankly as usual, he suddenly stopped.
"You know," he muttered, "I should like to be a Bolshevist general! If we can get German intelligence with Russian Bolshevism, we'll make the rest of the world pack up!"

What a change of attitude! But the tragedy was that his words typified a reversion throughout the country to the thought that force, brute force, is perhaps, after all, the Nation's only recourse. Much of the war had been undone.

And now, today? The interval has not restored a sense of moderation. The extremes have constantly gained. But there is still a nucleus of sturdy Germans who see that Truth and justice, not might, must be the standards. And, most important, a new opportunity seems at hand to let reasoned right prevail—an opportunity slight, not nearly so great as in 1918 or even 1922, but nevertheless invaluable. Only if this be seized, and Christian magnanimity promptly dominate in foreign chancelleries, shall I wish to stand again at Argonne or Verdun. For otherwise the struggle will have been in vain.

Ramsay MacDonald and Europe's Settlement

SETTLEMENT of the European situation is, largely, in the hands of Ramsay MacDonald, the British Prime Minister, according to Frank H. Simonds, in the Review of Reviews. "Given the results of the German election," he writes, "it may well be doubted if any adjustment, even on the basis of the Dawes report, would be longer conceivable were France and Germany the sole nations concerned, since for France, quite naturally, the German results have inspired grave apprehensions. Actually, the future chance of adjustment must rest upon the manner in which the British Labor Prime Minister deals with what is at once a unique opportunity and a confessedly difficult task."
